To: The Board of Governors of Exhibition Place

From: Dianne Young
General Manager & CEO

Subject: Records Retention Schedule & Disposition of Transitory and Duplicate Records - Exhibition Place

Purpose:

This report is being submitted for the consideration of the Board of Governors.

Financial Implications and Impact Statement:

There are no financial implications resulting from the adoption of this report.

Recommendations:

It is recommended that the Board:

- (1) approve the records retention schedule set out in Appendix B to this report, and the special records retention schedule for transitory and duplicate records in Appendix A;
- (2) submit this report to City Council and request that Council pass any necessary by-law to establish the records retention schedules in Appendices "A" and "B", in order to schedule the retention of Exhibition Place records and to destroy records that have no administrative, financial, legal or archival value and have completed their scheduled retention; and
- (3) authorize and direct the appropriate Exhibition Place and City officials to take the necessary action to give effect thereto.

Background:

Under section 255 of the Municipal Act, 2001, except as otherwise provided, a record of a municipality or local board (other than a copy of the original record) may only be destroyed if the retention period for the record, as established in a municipal records retention by-law under section 255 has expired. The section also provides that the schedule must be approved by the municipal auditor (the external auditor in the case of the City.)

The City has adopted a retention schedule for various types of City records as set out in City of Toronto Municipal Code Chapter 217, Records, Corporate (City). Exhibition Place's retention schedule for transitory and duplicate records and general records retention schedules in Appendices A and B of this report, are based on the City's retention schedules in Chapter 217. In some cases, the scope notes and retention periods for specific series have been altered to serve the needs of Exhibition Place.

Comments:

Retention Schedules:

Retention scheduling is the process of identifying and describing record series (for example, employee files and accounts payable would all be separate record series) and then using a timetable to specify the length of time that each record series must be kept prior to destruction or permanent archival storage. The length of time that record series are kept is determined on the basis of their value in supporting administrative, legal, financial or archival functions. Analysis is also undertaken of all legislation governing the records to determine how long they need to be kept legally (for example, financial audit requirements). Without a records retention schedule, municipal bodies would be legally obligated to retain all records indefinitely.

The City's method of establishing retention periods also includes consultation with senior staff and analysis by Internal Audit, City Manager's Office and Legal Services and the City's external auditor. Exhibition Place's retention schedule has received similar scrutiny, having been reviewed by the General Manager & CEO, Corporate Secretary and Director of Finance, Exhibition Place and the Director of Finance, National Trade Centre. It has also been reviewed by the City's Internal Audit, City Archivist, Legal Services and the external auditor.

The City of Toronto's retention schedule in Municipal Code Chapter 217, and Exhibition Place's retention schedule, as attached as Appendix B, set retention periods for many but not all existing records series. Later reports will address records series not included here.

Transitory and Duplicate records:

Section 255 of the Municipal Act also provides that a copy of an original record may be destroyed at any time if a retention period for the record has been established under the section. Exhibition Place employees routinely distribute and maintain duplicate copies of original records for immediate reference purposes. Duplicate records are usually extra photocopies or printed copies of letters, memoranda, and reports.

Along with duplicate copies, Exhibition Place employees also create and subsequently retain a large quantity of transitory records. Transitory records possess limited or no operational value. Included here are records, in any media,

- (a) retained solely for convenience of reference;
- (b) required solely for the completion of a routine action, or the preparation of another record;
- (c) of insignificant or no value in documenting Exhibition Place business transactions;
- (d) not an integral part of an Exhibition Place record;
- (e) not filed regularly with records or filing systems;
- (f) not required to meet statutory obligations or to sustain administrative or operational functions;
- (g) about social events that are not special Exhibition Place events;
- (i) a voice mail message.

Not all records created by Exhibition Place must be retained on a long-term basis to document its business functions. It is in the best interests of Exhibition Place to effectively manage its records, regardless of media, through the timely and appropriate destruction of transitory or duplicate records. This will minimize storage costs within offices and within the Record Centre. The timely destruction of transitory or duplicate electronic messages (e-mail) and voice mail will also alleviate stress on the telecommunication system.

E-mail has increased in importance as an accepted means for communicating recommendations, business decisions and information. Significant numbers of messages are sent and received by employees while performing their responsibilities, which has resulted in the creation of a large quantity of electronic and paper-based working files for reference purposes. Back-up tapes for electronic records are also maintained for emergency situations or to restore deleted files, and the voice messaging system accumulates recordings that are not intended to be maintained as corporate records.

The draft by-law in Appendix "A" to this report sets out the definitions and procedures that apply to the records retention schedule in Appendix "B". Section 219-12 of the by-law provides for the destruction of transitory and duplicate records as defined in the by-law.

It will be the responsibility of individual employees to determine if a record is transitory in nature, or if it needs to be retained to support business operations in accordance with the Exhibition Place records retention schedule. The Records and Archives Unit and the Information Technology Unit will prepare and distribute information to assist staff in making this determination.

Conclusions:

This report recommends the approval of the attached records retention schedule (Appendix "B") to ensure the timely destruction of Exhibition Place records that do not possess any long-term administrative, legal, fiscal or archival value. This report also recommends the approval of the special record retention schedules for transitory and duplicate records (as in the draft by-law in Appendix "A").

It is recommended that the Board of Governors of Exhibition Place approve this report and that the Board submit this report to City Council for the purpose of obtaining the necessary by-laws to establish these record retention schedules under the Municipal Act, 2001.
